House Plaques update Nov 23

The Individual House Plaques project aims to place a small cast metal plaque at the house in Thame of each service man who died for his country in either World War, but only where an association with that house can be identified beyond reasonable doubt.

Currently eighty nine names have been identified across seventy eight addresses in the older parts of Thame. By the end of October we will have fitted fifty one plaques at forty nine addresses commemorating fifty five names (see over for where!), with a further ten to be fitted during November. Leaving nineteen plaques commemorating twenty four men still to be taken up.

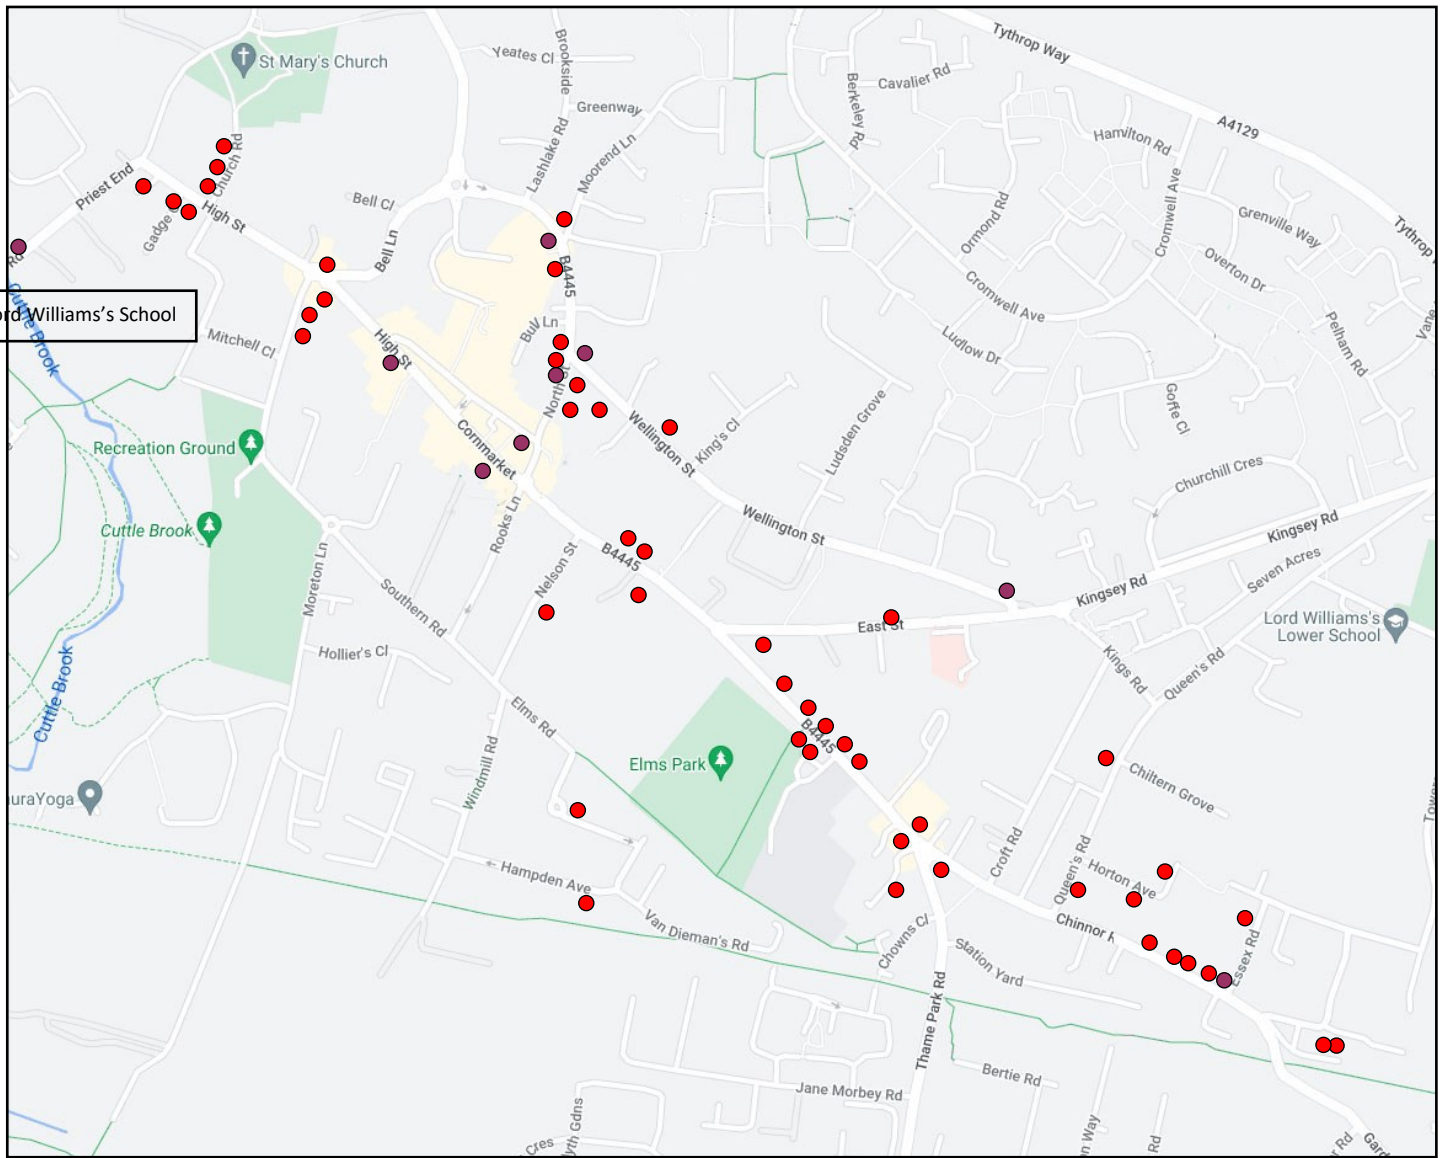

How to find out more information or contact us:

via our website: www.thameremembers.org, or e-mail houseplaques@btinternet.com or ask at Thame Town Hall.

How can we be certain that we have the right location?

Since our original publication more historical data, like the 1921 census, has been made available and so we have taken the opportunity to re-address the research to be absolutely certain that we have identified the correct houses.

Where are the house plaques?

Locations are indicated on the map above with a ● ● To be fitted Nov 23

How do I find out if my house is included?

Details of the qualifying locations are available on our website.

What if I have information to add?

We would be delighted to hear from anyone who has additional information about an individual person or about a house location.

How much does it cost and can I make a contribution to the project?

We welcome all contributions to the project. Whilst we are able to part fund the project, to be financially certain of achieving the whole project any donation that house owners are able to make following installation will be greatly appreciated. The cost to us is £42 for each plaque. Please contact us for details of how to make a contribution.
